

When Should I Prep for the SAT or ACT?

In general, you should start preparing for the SAT or ACT at least two to three months before your test date. Dedicate about four to five hours a week for test prep, which can include participating in a prep class, working with a private tutor, or self-study using study guides or free online sites like Khan Academy. Check out our blog to see which study option is right for you: <https://tri-edtutoring.com/sat-act-prep-study-options/> .
